1. Cicero gives a general portrayal of Sulpicius' character. This serves to demonstrate that this individual is worthy of honour. His personality is sufficiently honoured because of the memory he leaves behind.

nam reliqua Ser. Sulpici vita multis erit praeclarisque monumentis ad omnem memoriam commendata.

* semper illius gravitatem, constantiam, fidem, praestantem in re publica tuenda curam atque prudentiam omnium mortalium fama celebrabit. nec vero silebitur admirabilis quaedam et 5 incredibilis ac paene divina eius in legibus interpretandis, aequitate explicanda scientia. omnes ex omni aetate, qui in hac civitate intellegentiam iuris habuerunt, si unum in locum conferantur, cum Ser. Sulpicio non sint comparandi. nec enim ille magis iuris consultus quam iustitiae fuit. ita ea quae proficiscebantur a legibus et ab iure civili semper ad facilitatem aequitatemque 10 referebat, neque instituere litium actiones malebat quam controversias tollere. ergo hoc statuae monumento non eget; habet alia maiora. haec enim statua mortis honestae testis erit, illa memoria vitae gloriosae, ut hoc magis monumentum grati senatus quam clari viri futurum sit. *

multum etiam valuisse ad patris honorem pietas fili videbitur; qui quamquam adflictus luctu non adest, tamen sic animati esse debetis, ut si ille adesset.

Cicero Philippics 9.10–12

For the rest of Servius Sulpicius' life will be handed down to everlasting recollection by many shining memorials.

Moreover, the devotion of the son will appear to have counted for much in the honour paid to the father. Although he is too heavily stricken with grief to be here today, you should feel in your hearts as if he were present.

2. Agenor's daughter Europe is playing when she sees the enticing white bull who is Jupiter in disguise. First she plays with him and decorates him with garlands. Then she climbs on his back and he sets off, carrying her across the sea.

colla toris exstant, armis palearia pendent, 855 cornua vara quidem, sed quae contendere possis facta manu, puraque magis perlucida gemma.

 * nullae in fronte minae, nec formidabile lumen:
 pacem vultus habet. miratur Agenore nata,
 quod tam formosus, quod proelia nulla minetur; 860 sed quamvis mitem metuit contingere primo,
 mox adit et flores ad candida porrigit ora.
 gaudet amans et, dum veniat sperata voluptas, oscula dat manibus; vix iam, vix cetera differt;
 et nunc adludit viridique exsultat in herba, 865 nunc latus in fulvis niveum deponit harenis;
 paulatimque metu dempto modo pectora praebet virginea plaudenda manu, modo cornua sertis impedienda novis; ausa est quoque regia virgo nescia, quem premeret, tergo considere tauri, 870 cum deus a terra siccoque a litore sensim falsa pedum primis vestigia ponit in undis;
 inde abit ulterius mediique per aequora ponti
 fert praedam: *

pavet haec litusque ablata relictum 875 respicit et dextra cornum tenet, altera dorso inposita est; tremulae sinuantur flamine vestes.

Ovid Metamorphoses 2.854–875

Muscles stood out upon his neck, a dewlap hung from the point of his shoulder, his horns were small, but you would insist that they were made by hand, and they gleamed more than a flawless gem.

She was afraid and, as she was carried off, looked back to the shore she had left behind, holding his horn in her right hand, and putting her other hand upon his back; her dress billowed and fluttered in the breeze.
